Market Update

In the US nonfarm payrolls climbed higher than consensus forecasts in October, according to the data released in early November, and September and August payrolls growth were also revised upward. The 12-month average payrolls change through October was slightly higher than the expansion average. U.S. manufacturing data improved, on the other hand, Markit's U.S. manufacturing PMI remained just within expansionary territory in November. The S&P 500 Index returned a solid 3.6% in November, eclipsing 11 new records.

Minutes of the last Federal Open Market Committee meeting showed a more unified Federal Reserve. More members agreed that in the wake of its third cut in short-term interest rates, it was time to pause and assess future economic data to determine the path of monetary policy.

The U.S. dollar ended the month stronger; the British pound weakened 0.1% versus the dollar, although dollar strength was partially offset by increasing expectations of a Conservative majority in the UK December election, a result that would likely lead to passage of a Brexit agreement by Parliament.

Fund Objective

The Fund's objective is to provide investors with moderate to high portfolio appreciation over the medium to long-term through active management of the investment assets. The Fund will invest in a range of financial products that focus on Global Macroeconomics and, in holding both long and short positions, will seek absolute returns regardless of market direction. The Fund will predominantly invest and trade in global futures markets worldwide, across categories such as share indices, interest rates, currencies and commodities. The Fund may also invest in listed equities and can hold relatively large cash exposures.

Fund Strategy

The strategy aims to identify medium and long-term trends and trend shifts, but to also vary position size given short-term technical indicators including sentiment and momentum. The strategy targets positive results over 12 month rolling periods. The Investment Manager's advantage lies in correct assessment of broad valuation measures, macroeconomic environment, sentiment and economic forecasting.
